

National Executive Committee 2018

Constituency parties now have the chance to nominate nine representatives for Labour's National Executive.

The candidates below are working to secure the election of a Jeremy Corbyn led Labour government. They will stand up for the rights of members and are backed by: the Campaign for Labour Party Democracy (CLPD), Jewish Voice for Labour (JVL), Labour Assembly Against Austerity (LAAA), Labour Briefing Co-op, Labour Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament (LCND) and Momentum.

Please urge your CLP to nominate these candidates by Friday 22 June.

Yasmine Dar

Elected to the NEC in January 2018, I am committed to changing our society for the better. I am a single mother, social worker, multi-faith prison chaplain and representative on Manchester City Council. Proud of my Asian roots, I have faced down strong challenges from UKIP and the BNP.

Jeremy's leadership has inspired so many to vote for us, with his policies to radically transform our country. I will fight for a party that is fair, transparent and above all else democratic.

My father's favourite saying is, "If people come together, they can even mend a crack in the sky." Collectivism is at the heart of our labour movement, and as a maxim has shaped my politics. That's why I am campaigning for reform to further democratise our Party.

I am a committed anti-racist, and I want use my position on the NEC to empower members to feel safe, capable and encouraged in working to secure a Labour government.

Jeremy Corbyn's leadership has reinvigorated the Labour Party with his anti-austerity plan for growth, and progressive anti-racist, anti-war agenda. I fully support this transformation and want to continue to work with Jeremy on the NEC to deliver a democratic socialist Labour government and a more democratic, inclusive Labour Party.

In nearly 25 years of Labour Party activism I've held numerous positions, including 10 years as CLP Secretary. If re-elected I will continue to be a strong voice for grassroots members.

Ann Henderson

I am a member of Labour's Scottish Executive Committee who supports Jeremy Corbyn's leadership. I am committed to the democratisation of the party.

Previous employment includes: fifteen years in the rail industry in Glasgow; community development work; parliamentary research; and Assistant General Secretary of the Scottish TUC.

I have represented union members needing assistance and worked with women in the labour movement to establish women's committee structures.

Jon Lansman

A Labour member since 1974, I worked with Tony Benn through the 1980s and currently chair Momentum's governing body. I helped mobilise tens of thousands of activists during the 2017 General Election and played a leading role in Jeremy Corbyn's two leadership campaigns.

I want to see a Corbyn-led government with his radical, inspiring programme – delivering investment for growth, secure well paid jobs for all, quality public services and a welfare state that will eradicate poverty, inequality and injustice.

Navendu Mishra

I was born in India and am proud to call Stockport my home. I was Labour's parliamentary candidate for Hazel Grove constituency in the 2017 general election. I am an activist with Unite & USDAW and work as an organiser for Unison.

In the past year, we have come a long way. I campaigned for Jeremy Corbyn in both leadership elections. I am standing to be a voice of the membership, so we continue building a modern democratic socialist party that delivers transformative change in government.

The Tory Government is attacking the poor, so a Jeremy Corbyn led Labour Party needs to win the next General Election. We now have a clear anti-austerity message that breaks from the political consensus.

We must challenge concentrations of power, inequality and social injustice. As an equalities grassroots campaigner, I champion civil liberties, plus oppose the scapegoating of migrants and refugees.

I stand up for trade union rights, defend public services and support council house-building.

Last year's general election showed the growing public support for Jeremy Corbyn's bold, radical plans to end Tory austerity. To strengthen Labour for forthcoming elections, we need real democratic accountability and an NEC that backs Jeremy's commitment to change.

In 29 years' active party membership, I have consistently campaigned for greater democracy and socialist policies. I've held office at all levels in the party, including, since 2016, the NEC. I'm a PCS full-time officer and a former Cardiff councillor.

I am privileged to be an NEC member and have uniquely served on all four of our Party's national committees since 1981.

We must all unite behind Jeremy and build for a Labour victory. Jeremy's dedication and integrity is exceptional and Labour's advance last year reflects the growing support for him and his policies.

I have the necessary energy, enthusiasm and commitment to serve our members and play a full part on the NEC as we fight to form the next government.
